INFORMATION FOR READERS.

This library consists of about 4000 volumes arranged according to the Dewey Decimal system of classification. The general scheme of this arrangement may be seen by the outline printed on the opposite page.

"The field of knowledge is divided into nine main classes and these are numbered by the digits, 1 to 9. Cyclopedias, perodicals, etc., so general in character as to belong to no one of these classes are marked nought, and form a tenth class. Each class is similarly separated into nine divisions, general works belonging to no division having nought in place of the division number. Divisions are similarly divided into nine sections and the process is repeated as often as necessary." Thus, 814 means class 8 (Literature), divison 1 (American literature), section 4 (essays); and every volume of essays by an American writer is numbered 814. Similarly, English essays are numbered 824, and French essays 844.

"Since each subject has a definite number and the books are arranged in simple numerical order, it follows that all books on any given subject must stand together."

In order that all books by one author may stand together on the shelves and in the catalogue, the books in each section are arranged alphabetically by authors' names according to the Cutter alphabetic order table.

Thus, each book has the number of its class and sub-class, and in another line the initial of its author's name followed by one or more decimal figures assigned according to a table so constructed that the names whose initials are followed by some of the first letters of the alphabet have the first numbers, and those in which the initials are followed by later letters have later numbers.

This system insures the preservation of the alphabetic order no matter how many books by authors having a common initial may be placed upon the shelves. Where there is more than one book by the same author in one class or sub-class the later books have the initial of the book title following the author number in order to distinguish them.

Fiction is not classified, and, therefore has no class number but only the author's initial and number. In this Finding list the Fiction list is printed first and is followed by Juvenile fiction and Juvenile classed books which are distinguished by the small letter j before the book number.

Individual Biography likewise is not classified, and is arranged alphabetically by the names of the persons written about. It is given no class number but is distinguished by the capital letter B before the book number, thus, a life of Washington is marked BW27. Individual Biography is inserted in this list following collected Biography, 920. An alphabetic list of all reference books is placed at the beginning of the general classed list.

The author index which forms the second half of this Finding List contains in alphabetic order the name of every author represented in the library, and under the author's name every book in the library by that author.

In calling for books, readers are requested to give both the class number and the shelf or book number in full.
